I've got this software, but it wont work. The latest version is 4.0.5. It's been too long since I looked at this, and the download I was using hasn't been updated in forever. Is there a newer one out there? The software should have a version with 4.0.5. Thanks. A: Vocalign Pro for Windows includes a file called "license.txt". If you simply run this file, it will search your hard drive (C:\) and find other files or folders containing "SYNCROART.COM". These files will then be registered with your product and will be upgraded automatically to the newest version at some point in the future. But the license.txt file has a different license than the product itself, so it is not valid to use it with the product. I suggest you read the readme.txt or manual for VocAlign Pro for Windows to get the proper license information. In my case, I need to do this every time I buy a license for VocAlign Pro for Windows - it will search for a music.lic file that specifies the licence. 10 Ways to Get Rid of Fur Few things in life are more disgusting than a cat or a dog with fur on their dainty paws. A summer feline's fur can get so hot during those warm, sweltering days, it can become a breeding ground for annoying and dangerous ticks. And fur can be quite an infestation. From lice to fleas, from mites to an arachnophobia-inducing spider bite, fur can cause much distress to household pets and their human companions. Here are 10 ways to get rid of fur: Killing the cat If you want to remove a cat's fur from its legs or tail, there are a number of humane traps available at your local pet store. A simple technique for killing a cat is to pick it up and throw it over your head. This will probably kill your cat instantly (and no, you can't use a bowling ball for this). A variation on this is to strangle the cat, which works similarly but isn't always as gentle for a quick death. Another variation on this? Slicing open the cat's belly and watching blood gush out. Using a vacuum If you want to tackle a cat's fur on your own,
