"The Gods of ice and stone... strange and inhuman. For centuries they dwelled alone in their hidden halls, their only worshippers the pilgrims who journeyed to the Great Ice Mountain to commune with their deities." This is a module for use with the Fantasy Grounds computer program. However it can easily be used as an adventure with a game master. In addition, it is a style of gameplay that can be easily adapted for other applications and campaigns. Note on gameplay: This is an adventure for use in a single session of a tabletop RPG. Be warned that the adventure is geared towards the more physically-fit investigator. While the adventure can be adapted for use in a longer campaign, it is suggested that it be taken in smaller doses. Additional Notes: It is strongly recommended that the players assume they are spies rather than adventurers. They should approach the task with stealth and cunning rather than brawn, the goal of the adventure being to get a team in position that cannot be detected. It is advised that if you are running an adventure for a party that has not been in Greenland before, that players be cautioned to imagine themselves as being part of an archaeological team rather than a group of would-be treasure hunters. If there are any clues in the module that appear to have a connection to their group, they should be passed on to that group in-game or, if possible, with something encoded in a message in the module itself. On additional reading of the module before playing, it is suggested that the players be warned that in many ways this module is a work of fiction. Read the adventure carefully and keep in mind the possible outcomes of the quest, then watch out for the clues in the module as they lead to possible connections and clues to the real story. This adventure is free to use for commercial and non-commercial gaming under Creative Commons license CC BY-NC 4.0. An Adventure Module for use with the Fantasy Grounds virtual tabletop This adventure is tailored for the physically-fit investigator; the challenges include an expedition to the icy interior, the climbing of dangerous glaciers, and encounters with hostile humans and others. At the end of the journey the investigators will find themselves faced with an ancient stone temple guarded by an inhuman sentinel. If the investigators can gain entry to this building, they will find clues to the disappearance of the strange race that once worshiped here. For the less physically-fit, more scholarly investigator, opportunities for quieter studious adventures also exist while in Greenland. The c9d1549cdd

#A2.1 "How do you study a box that's not there?" — Jonathan Edwards Open Your Eyes! This new article works well for new journey members. For those who are already Dim-Na-Zi 8 (or higher) journey members, it will help you deepen your experience. The longer you are a journey member, the more you will learn about non-physical dimensions. You will learn to access higher dimensions more easily if you understand the standard way this occurs. This article will help you understand your awakening process and reach the non-physical dimensions, and what they look like. Ask questions. 1. Before coming here, why did you want to study this subject and how can it help your life now? 2. You said you are Dim-Na-Zi 8. What did you mean by that, please define each word for us. Dim-Na-Zi Dimension: Higher or lower level of reality. In the beginning you become aware of 3+1 dimensions (physical, biological, and mental), which is your material reality. There are higher dimensions that can be accessed, but they are invisible and subtle, so although you can see them, you cannot discern them. For people who will ascend spiritually, they can self-narrow to 4 or 5 dimensions. This article will relate only to the physical dimension. Na-Zi: You are the aura, bio, or energy center of the body. A person's energy center takes the form of the body. You can see these centers light up when you have a strong connection with a friend. Also, a friend can see your energy center when he or she "pulls" on your own energy center. Dim-Na-Zi: a non-material psychic energy of consciousness. A person manifests this when he or she is going to manifest his or her true nature. Your Dim-Na-Zi normally vibrates at the same resonant frequency as your physical body. It supports your body and gives you a higher perception and awareness of the 3-D physical world. This article will expand on the concept that you are living in multiple dimensions at the same time (Lecture 2). Open Your Eyes! 1. Your physical body resides in 3+1 dimensions. Physical dimensions are perceived by your 5 senses: sight, hearing, smell, touch, and
