A dedicated video display port is optional, but provides you with a quick access to use the HDTV through the Intel Graphics Media Accelerator 3650 that sits inside the NAS. Using HDMI to eSATA conversion (the CH7318C), the transport of video to the eSATA port is almost immediate, and fully compliant with all the data formats of the common MPEG-2 or MPEG-4 visual content. Switching between Windows and Thecus Local Display is as simple as it gets, and allows for use of the NAS as a media delivery device. Switching between content types is also fairly simple, although it would have been nice to have a "preview" feature so that you can see the different input types without having to browse a media library.
